ADMISSION POLICY

JobTrain vocational training programs are open to students regardless of whether they have graduated from high school, and regardless of their eligibility for funding.

- JobTrain counselors enroll students in classes based on their judgment of the students' ability to benefit from training, considering a broad range of factors including students' academic skills, employability, availability, completion of prerequisite activities or classes, attitudes, and previous training and employment history.
- In case enrollments are limited by class size, priority may be given to students based on availability of funding, education, aptitude, and other factors. Since some funding sources impose particular requirements regarding residence, barriers to employment, Selective Service registration, income, gender, etc., those may be factors considered in prioritization of enrollments.
