ADMISSION POLICY

JobTrain vocational training programs are open to students regardless of their eligibility for funding. Students must be 18 or over upon completion of vocational training. Some programs are open to non-high school graduates.

JobTrain's mission is to serve those most in need, so our programs are aimed at people with very low income. Therefore, JobTrain does not charge individuals for training programs. Training cost will either be covered by JobTrain or by a special funding source. JobTrain requires everyone to complete the eligibility process to determine funding qualification. Staff will explain the process and assist in determining eligibility.

We strive to select students who can reasonably expect to complete their vocational training and obtain employment. Due to the limited number of classroom seats available we are not able to admit all of our qualified applicants. JobTrain counselors must judge each applicant's ability to benefit from training, using both objective and subjective factors. Assessment process may take a minimum of 2-3 weeks.

In addition, priority may be given to applicants based on the particular requirements of funding sources, or to meet JobTrain's commitment to helping those who are most in need to succeed.
