

Your In-Kind Gift to JobTrain

We greatly appreciate your support and thank you for your in-kind donation. As a nonprofit organization with 501 (c)(3) status, JobTrain is required to follow federal and state guidelines for reporting the fair market value of all of our in kind donations. The following guidelines identify the value JobTrain reports for all in-kind donations that are not accompanied by proof of fair market value.

We are committed to ensuring that your donation is valued accurately. Should the value of your gift defer from those outlined below, we will gladly adjust our reporting to reflect the correct value. In order to do so, however, we will need documentation.

Proof of fair market value can be documented in a number of ways, including receipts, purchase orders, proof of recent sale of a similar item, and appraisals by individuals whose work makes them knowledgeable about the market value of the item given and who does not have a material interest in the property being donated. Please note that for gifts in-kind that are valued at more than $5,000, the IRS requires that a professional appraisal be obtained by the donor.
